OUT OF THE WATER. DEAD MAN TAKEN FROM BASIN.

upposed to Be a Thief Who Fled f.om an Officer and Escaped the Law and Met Yesterday meeting the dead body of Joe Falkner (colored) was found floating in 'he basin, on the south side, between Ninth and Tenth streets. It was seen on the water for several hours, but the first o'sservers took the head—which was just hittle above the surface—to be the stump of a tree. But at last an enterprising individual, suspecting that it was a man, got a rope ind hauled it ashore.

Ceroner Taylor was sent for and came and made a careful examination of the body. He found it in an advanced state of decomposition, but there were no marks of violence to be seen.

Details of the Accident on the Virginia Midland Raifrond-Miraculous Escapes and Deeds of Heroism.

Deeds of Heroism.

The Lynchburg Advance of yesterday evening gives the following details of the accident which occurred on the Virginia Midland railroad Sunday morning:

At a few minutes of 5 o'clock yesterday (Sunday) morning the inhabitants along the river on the Amberst side, which is crossed by the Virginia Midland trains on two wooden bridges, were startled by the loud, shrill, and long whistle of the morning south-bound express—a whistle which, when heard, is never mistaken for other than distress. At the rate of probably sixty miles an hour the train came thundering down the grade to the bridge with nothing to arrest its headlong career.

THE WESTINGHOUSE AID-BUAKES.

THE WESTINGROUSE ADS-BRAKES. which are always used to check the train before reaching the sharp curve which approaches the bridge, were out of order and refused to work. The conductor and train-lands answered the signals by jumping to the hand-brakes and putting them hard down, but this was insufficient to check the impetus of the train, and to reverse his engine on a sharp curve the experienced engineer Moore knew was total destruc-tion. The train, including baggage, ex-press-ear, smoker, passenger coach, and the New York and Washington through Pullman sleepers
